OUR BOYS / OUR BOYS / OUR BOYS — A — GREAT SUCCESS / GREAT SUCCESS / GREAT SUCCESS

READ THE OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

The S. M. HERALD says:—
"Revived on Saturday night, before a very large audience, and every point in the dialogue was so promptly taken and applauded, that the play might be expected to attract good patronage for a long time to come."

The TELEGRAPH says:—
"The play was enthusiastically received, the acting throughout was remarkable for the zest with which each performer threw herself or himself into the spirit of the plot, and seemed to enter con amore into the author's pungent satires and keen witticisms, the result being a most complete and satisfactory representation, and all the leading characters were summoned before the curtain. The play was magnificently staged."

The EVENING NEWS says:—
"It may safely be predicted that whilst Our Boys is on the bill the theatre will be crowded, and praise will be instituted. The scenery is perfection, and applause was deservedly unstinted."

Parliamentary Elections.

ELECTORS OF ST. LEONARDS, NORTH SHORE.

MR. JOHN NURLEY will address a Public MEETING on THURSDAY EVENING NEXT, 21st instant, at 8 o'clock, in the Masonic Hall, when he will also be delivered by leading the future course.

TO THE ELECTORS OF ST. LEONARDS.

GENTLEMEN,—At the request of some of your number, I am again in the field for the seat vacant by the death of your late member. I enter into this election recognising the fact that a great public question is involved. The constitution of which I am entitled to claim, to an extent that it is imperative on those who wish it to defend it, especially when it is made the attack by one who is not an elected representative of the people. I have fully considered the extremely short life of the present Parliament, and can understand that it may be a special sacrifice in seeking a seat to an early close whose existence will soon expire. But there are other reasons than representing a constituency for the sake of a metropolitan status. There are constitutional questions to be considered, and in support of these I am present. First I take the action of the Colonial Office in the case of argument admit that the force of the troops to the Soudan, though not constitutional, is a political choice made use of for a world's advantage. Yet it appears the loyalty, chivalry, and resolution with which we rally, before accepted the position they occupied in the struggle, was considered by a minister of the Crown to be a large number of our colonists, who are under the ban. Yet I pointed against Mr. Dalley's action in performing the troops for service in Afghanistan in defence of the policy without first obtaining the sanction of the Legislature. Such actions are to be tolerated when the Governments are in the hands of one person, and unofficial. Be it remembered that the Ministry I have alluded, will be found to object which to be committed, given the fullest of that can be inflicted upon him, as there is to a member who neglects or betrays them. Yet, there is no such thing as political death; for, if he be possessed of a political vulnerability. Secondly, I am to be political. Having served some years in the Parliament of this country, I think an active interest in the passing of Parliament, and still adhere to its principles. I am sympathy in accord with those who advocate the necessity of a federal form, and the action of the Government in the Bank of New South Wales meets with my approval.

Instead of obtaining stock for our Railway Department in the manufactory, or, the wrecked bridge in repair, I am, whenever the colony is a loser to the extent of the public purse. Unnecessary purchases and commissions in the Department of Works demand special watchfulness.

I am in favor of the Land Administration, and this is another matter itself is worth more than any other consideration. I am prepared to take from me the valuable and the land in special emergence

The object in floating the business into a Limited Company by the present proprietors is to enable them to carry on a more extensive business, which is every day increasing to such an extent as to cause more capital necessary.

Three years ago, when the proprietors commenced business, at Wodonga (the terminus for the large district of the Upper Murray), it was under the powers that be, that the large carrying companies had all the business in their own hands, but by hard work, industry, and straight dealings, we are pleased to say that we now conduct the leading business of the Upper Murray district.

When the North-eastern Line joined the N. S. W. Railway Line at Albury, we were induced to open an office in that town, where we have a large and thriving business established, and it is now a profitable business, which is daily increasing both in our town and with the Riverina District.

The balance of our books for the year ending 30th June, 1884, showed a clear profit of 70 per cent. on a capital of £1000. Upon the formation of this Company we propose opening an office in Sydney, where we have been offered a liberality of patronage equal to any one of the leading merchants, and we have no hesitation in saying that the business in Sydney can be made a very profitable one.

The proprietors will work the business as they have heretofore, and, with their accustomed energy and their confidence of paying at least 30 per cent. to the shareholders, guarantee that 70 per cent. can be secured on £1000, with the same as of capital, or at least likely to be 150 to 15 per cent., and assuming you that we can secure profitable business that we have hitherto let go elsewhere.

The proprietors can strongly recommend this as a safe paying investment, and not as any way a speculation, and are so sure of the successful issue of this Company that they intend to invest £250 in the business themselves.

DISTRICT COURT APPEALS.

II.

In several of these appeals which have come before the Supreme Court within the last few days, preliminary objections have been taken and have succeeded, so that the appeal has not been heard on the merits at all. In an article published in this journal on the 15th instant, the decision in Phillips v. Oakley was commented upon. A more recent decision in the case of Blakeney v. Pegus, made on the 13th instant, in which a preliminary objection again proved fatal to the hearing of the appeal, is of still greater importance to litigants on account of the very large number of appeal cases which it will affect, and the question arises whether the subject is not one of sufficient importance to call for fresh legislation, for that these appeals should be frequently defeated on technical points is a matter of public grievance. The first section of the District Courts Amendment Act of 1881—which is virtually a reproduction of the sixth section of the English Act of 1875, 38 and 39 Vict., c. 50—contains provisions which are by no means happily expressed, and it has in consequence been the subject for many judicial decisions. That section, among other provisions, enacts that, in certain cases, it shall be lawful for any person aggrieved by the decision of the District Court Judge, at any time within eight days after the same shall have been given, to appeal against such decision by motion to the Supreme Court, "and if pending such eight days, or at the time of their expiration, the Court shall not be sitting in Banco, such motion may be made before any Judge thereof."

The limit of time—eight days—within which the motion may be made is expressed in absolute terms, and shortly after the passing of the English Act Baron Bramwell expressed a doubt "whether under any circumstances we have power to enlarge a period of time fixed by a statute for doing an act." (In Brown v. Shaw, L. R. 1., Ex. D., 425.) In Tennant v. Rawlings, L. R. 4, C. P. D., 133, the Common Pleas Division decided that the Court had no such power. In that case the appellant's counsel appeared before the Divisional Court within the eight days, but owing to a great press of court business the presiding Judge declared that extension of time would be granted in all cases of application for new trials, &c.; and, subsequently, after the eight days had elapsed, the appellant obtained his rule. The Court, however, held it was out of time, for they had no power to extend the time for moving. Although it had been frequently done in practice (see Morgan v. Davies, L. R. 3, C. P. D., 260), it had been done inadvertently. This decision, though disapproved of by Lord Chief Justice Cockburn—in Mason v. Wirral Highway Board, L. R. 4, Q. B. D., 459—has not been overruled and has governed the practice in England. "If, therefore, on the last day for moving, a Divisional Court be not sitting, the appellant's counsel should apply to a Judge in chambers; and if, on the other hand, the Court be sitting, and owing to the state of business the appellant's counsel is unable to bring on his motion, he should at the rising of the Court, instead of asking that the time for moving may be extended, beg to be allowed to state just sufficient of his case as will make it part heard." (Pitt-Lewis' County Court Practice, page 576.) Such has been the practice obtaining of late years in England. In this colony the practice has not been so strict, and it has been common for counsel, where the Judge's notes were not ready, merely to mention the case within the eight days "to save time," and ask for an adjournment. Whether this can be deemed a compliance with the decision of Tennant v. Rawlings, I greatly doubt. However, such has been the practice here, and the case has then often been adjourned from time to time, and the Judge's notes having arrived, the rule has been granted long after the eight days have elapsed. It is necessary to wait for the notes, as the motion has to be made upon them. In the case of Airey v. M'Mahon, decided in 1881, our Supreme Court held that the motion must be made upon the notes or upon affidavit (1 N. S. W. R., 132); in practice, it is always made upon the former.

There is no doubt this strict limit of time, without giving the Judges power to extend it, is a blunder. It is often found too restrictive even in England, where the communication between London and the provinces is rapid, but it is altogther unsuited to the circumstances of this colony, where the distances are great and the means of communication not always of the best. Take the case of a District Court Judge giving a decision say at Wentworth or Wilcannia. As he is probably sitting in court all day, it may be some days before he has time to finish his copy of notes of the point raised. The actual transit to Sydney will take from five to seven or eight days, so that there is no possibility of the motion on the notes being made within the eight days. Yet according to the decisions if not so made, it cannot be made at all.

In this state of the law the case of Blakeney v. Pegus came before the Supreme Court on the 13th instant, for the rule nisi to be made absolute or discharged, and a preliminary objection was taken as to the mode in which the rule nisi had been obtained. In that case the decision of the District Court Judge was given on the 18th February last, and on that day the plaintiff recovered judgment for £50. On the 20th February the defendant's counsel mentioned the case, and as he was not then in a position to bring the Judge's notes before the Court, he asked for an adjournment, which was granted until the 27th February, the last day but one of term. On that day, the notes not having yet arrived, another adjournment was asked for, and the Court adjourned the case to a later date, to be heard before a Judge in Chambers, and the latter granted the rule nisi.

The question raised was whether the Judge had power to grant that rule; and it was contended by Mr. Salomons for the plaintiff that he had not such power, on three grounds, viz.:—

1. The motion must be made upon a copy of the Judge's notes, and until the notes were in court it was not made, and as the notes were not ready until after the expiration of the eight days, the motion itself was out of time.

2. The Court had no power to delegate their appellate jurisdiction under this Act to a Judge in Chambers, as had been done in this case. In some cases, instead of applying to the Court, an application might be made to a Judge in Chambers, but where a statute expressly or impliedly directs that the application shall be made only to the Court, a Judge has no power to interfere, nor in such case can the Court delegate their powers to him. (See Chitty's Practice, 12th ed., vol. 2, p. 1598.) He relied upon the judgments in Smeeton v. Collier (1 Exchequer Reports, 457), in which case Baron Parke said:—"In the 48 Geo. III., c. 46, where the enactment is that the motion is to be made in open court, it is clear that the Judge is not to have any power in the matter. Again, in the 48 Geo. III., c. 123, it is enacted that the application must be made in term time to one of the superior Courts, which shows that the Legislature intended that the power should be exercised by the Court and not by the Judge." By our District Courts Act the power could only be exercised by a Judge "if pending such eight days, or at the time of their expiration, the Court shall not be sitting in Banco." Here the eight days expired during term time, and then the motion must be to the Court itself. The Act by giving these separate jurisdictions—the one to the Court during term, the other to the Judge in vacation—impliedly confines the jurisdiction to the Court if the eight days expire during term.

3. The motion, if treated as made on the 20th February, must be deemed to be part heard then, and the Court cannot delegate to a Judge a part-heard case.

The Court did not agree with the two former of these contentions, but the latter prevailed. They held that the motion was made in time—i.e., they "deemed it as initiated and partly argued on the 20th February. . . . The motion here," said the Chief Justice, "must be deemed by a necessary fiction to have been partly heard on that date. There is no authority that I know of for the Court sending a case partly heard to a Judge to dispose of, and I think this we cannot do, though where a case has not been partly heard the Court can undoubtedly refer it to a Judge." Upon that ground the rule was discharged.

The result of that decision is this. If the eight days expire during term the motion must be made to the Full Court. If the Judge's notes are not ready an adjournment must be asked for, and unless they can be obtained before that term ends, the motion must be adjourned until the following term. If the rule be then obtained, it will come on for argument during the next following term. To take this very case, decided on the 13th February last. The notes are not ready in Sydney by the 28th February, on which day term ends. The motion ought then to stand adjourned till the end of April, and the rule if obtained then would probably be decided in August, though possibly not till November. Such a delay is far too long, and the Court ought to be empowered by Act of Parliament to extend the time for making the original motion, and a Judge in Chambers ought to have jurisdiction to hear it, whether the eight days expired during term or afterwards. Such an amendment would render needless "fictions" at present "necessary," and allow these appeals to be dealt with in accordance with public convenience and with the dictates of common sense.

ST. LEONARDS ELECTION.

Mr. Isaac Ellis Ives, a candidate for the representation of the electorate of St. Leonards in the room of the late Mr. B. O. Holtermann, addressed a large meeting of electors in the New Masonic Hall, St. Leonards, last night. The chair was occupied by Mr. John Liggins.

Mr. Ives, having paid a grateful tribute to the memory of Mr. B. O. Holtermann, said that when he received the requisition to contest the present election, he was prepared at first to decline the honour. He had been for 13 months in England and the Continent, and did not feel himself so well posted in their requirements as he would have liked, and another reason for declining the honour was that his own business required a great deal of his attention. When, however, they had so strenuously urged him to represent them, and when he remembered also that it was not the first time they had done so, he thought he would not be acting fairly if he did not place his services at their disposal. He was not aware that any questions of great importance were before the country at the present time, or would be, in fact, during the present Parliament. There were, however, some matters which a candidate in his position should touch upon. During the last three years little had been done to further the interests of St. Leonards, although it was promised that much they required should receive attention. They had a court house and a post and telegraph office erected at a cost of £15,000. They were to have a railway from Pearce's corner to Ball's Head, but they had not got it, and as a matter of fact, only a small portion of public money had been spent in their district. He thought, however, a mistake would be made if the railway were taken to Ball's Head. It should be taken through the centre of population to the water's edge where at some time they would be connected by a bridge or some other scheme with Sydney. He also thought that a branch railway should be made from their district to Manly Beach, as it would enhance the value of property en route, and promote settlement on lands now vacant. With regard to other matters, they found that water pipes had been laid across the harbour for them. That was all very well; but they were only to have water when it rained. (Cheers.) The question, however, was when would it rain? (Laughter.) Even if water came through such pipes he questioned whether it would be sufficient to meet the wants of so large a locality. They must, he thought, seek for other sources of supply. He had learned that tenders had been accepted for their tramway. He feared, however, the line would not be sufficiently long. They were, he understood, also to have the wire system of tramway. He had seen this system in operation in Highgate, London. It worked smoothly and well, but compared with horse traction he considered it very expensive. If the charges with regard to it were very high here, he feared it would not meet the approbation of the public. With regard to the bridge across the harbour, he would remind them that he was chairman of the bridge committee in 1866, and on that occasion had spent much time and money in bringing the subject before the public, with a view to their getting a high level bridge. The Minister for Works of the day laughed at the idea, but there was really little that was difficult connected with it. In a month's tour in the old country they would find a score of such bridges. There they thought nothing of building them. If they had a bridge here at all his idea was that it should be substantial enough to carry railway, vehicular, and pedestrian traffic. The difficulties of a swinging portion might be surmounted by the introduction of hydraulic machinery. What the inhabitants should do was to show that they wanted such a structure, and if they backed up their representative in the matter they would get it. (Cheers.) On the other hand, he had noticed since his return that a scheme had been propounded for making a tunnel under the harbour. If they said they would have a tunnel, there would be no more difficulty about it than there would be in regard to a bridge. There was plenty of tunnelling done in England. They had underground railways there, and made tunnels three or four miles long. If they could not get the bridge here, and a tunnel would meet their requirements, he saw no reason why they should not substitute it for the bridge. Whatever they did, they should insist upon their representatives securing perfect communication between their district and the city. He was sure they would agree with him that there was nothing more urgent for them than a complete system of sewerage. Their population had increased at an enormous rate during the last few years, while no satisfactory advance had been made in their sewerage systems, and though they could once boast of the healthiness of the place they must admit that they now met many foul contaminations in it. The electorate, of itself, was not in a position to undertake an efficient system of sewerage, and it was really a matter which the Government should take in hand. The local water supply was a matter which also required their grave consideration. With a comparatively small expenditure they could supply the whole of North Shore proper with water from Lane Cove. (Cheers.) He was prepared to give his best energies towards the establishment of efficient systems of sewerage and water-supply. (Cheers.) In regard to educational matters, he might inform them that he had worked hard in support of their Education Act, and no power on earth would now persuade him to do one jot or tittle against it. (Loud cheers.) He advised them to elect a man who would fearlessly contend that their finances should be properly administered, and would do his best for the whole country and for each portion of it to get its fair share of public money. Their public works must be pushed on. It was essential that their railways should be constructed simultaneously, that the centres of the colony might be tapped, and that towns should spring up more abundantly, and have new industries surrounding them. Their railways, he was sure, would pay handsomely in a few years. He understood that the Government intended to bring in a Local Government Bill. Such a measure ought to have been brought in years ago. Under its provisions each district would have its requirements promptly and economically attended to. (Cheers.) If he were elected he would give such a measure his best attention; it might relieve them of some of the burdens they laboured under; such, for instance, as the payment of transit commissioners' fees, from which, it appeared, they received no benefit; and such, for instance, as their contributions to the fire brigade. At present they paid away a considerable sum of money in these contributions, yet had neither fire-engine nor water. In reference to the Land Act he maintained that some of its provisions were unworkable. [A Voice: "It works very well for the squatters."] If he were returned and it came up for amendment, he would certainly endeavour to have it amended in such a way as to preclude the possibility of land monopoly. Every man, he thought, should be entitled to a fair share of their land, and the object aimed at by the Government should be the settling of as many persons as possible on the land. He concluded his address by expressing his approval of a system for the conservation of water in the interior, and of the action of the Government in sending New South Wales troops to the Soudan. With regard to the latter subject he said he was in London when the telegram offering the troops was received. The sensation caused by its arrival was marvellous. People who did not know them before made all sorts of enquiries respecting the colony. The departure of the men was a topic of conversation in the tram, the train, the omnibus, and in clubs and hotels also, little else was spoken of but the colony and the grand offer it had made. When he went to England he could assure them he felt proud of his having come from New South Wales. Whatever the movement cost, it was undoubtedly one of the grandest strokes of policy ever exhibited in Australia. (Cheers.)

Mr. E. M. Clark moved,—"That Mr. Ives was a suitable person to represent the electorate in Parliament." The motion was seconded by Mr. M. Charlton, and was carried unanimously.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—Monday, May 18.

MACKENZIE v. MACKENZIE.

Mr. Gordon, Q.C., Mr. A. H. Simpson, and Mr. Knox, instructed by Messrs. Allen and Allen, for the defendant appellant; Mr. Owen, Q.C., and Mr. Lingen, instructed by Mr. H. J. Brown, of Newcastle, for the plaintiff respondent.

The Court was occupied all day hearing the evidence taken before the Primary Judge in this suit, and the judgment of his Honor read. It will be remembered that this suit was instituted by John Mackenzie, examiner of coalfields, to have it declared that he was a partner with his brother, Dr. Walter Fowkes Mackenzie, in certain mining properties at Wallarawang. His Honor below made a decree in favour of the plaintiff, and against that decree the defendant has appealed. The hearing will be resumed to-morrow.

MACPHERSON AND OTHERS v. SUTHERLAND AND OTHERS.

Mr. Darley, Q.C., Mr. W. G. Walker, and Mr. G. Campbell, instructed by Mr. H. Salwey, for the plaintiffs; Mr. Owen, Q.C., and Mr. Simpson, instructed by Messrs. Allen and Allen, for the defendants.

This suit is brought by the Rev. J. S. Macpherson, Peter Macpherson, Hugh Livingstone, H. S. Buntine, and Messrs. Samuel Porter and Hector Mackenzie against the Revs. George Sutherland, Wm. S. Donald, Isaac Mackay, Samuel P. Stewart, D. K. M'Intyre, W. Grant, John Davis, Alexander Bain, D. M'Innes, Messrs. Alex. Law, Samuel Martin, Francis Mackenzie, D. J. Lobban, and E. A. Rennie, to have it declared that the expulsion of the plaintiffs by the defendants from the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Eastern Australia was illegal, and the resolution effecting it null and void; also, that the said defendants be restrained from excluding the plaintiffs or hindering them from the enjoyment of their rights of membership; and also from disbursing, disposing, or otherwise dealing or intermeddling with the moneys, funds, and property under the control or management of the said synod in any manner inconsistent with its constitution and practice. An inquiry into the past dealings of the defendants with the funds is also sought.

The question brought specially before the Court was one of jurisdiction, his Honor having determined to decide this point before entering upon an inquiry into the merits. The evidence of the plaintiff, J. S. Macpherson, and the defendant, E. A. Rennie, having been taken as to the property vested in the synod, counsel proceeded to argue the point. The argument will be resumed to-morrow.

Divorce Court.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice Windeyer.)

BLACKWELL v. BLACKWELL.

Mr. Dawson, who appeared for the petitioner, Blanche Lucy Blackwell, moved that the decree nisi granted on the 12th November, 1884, for the dissolution of marriage with her husband, Louis Buckland Blackwell, be made absolute.

MOORE v. MOORE.

On the motion of Mr. Gibson, the decree nisi granted on the 11th November, 1884, for the dissolution of marriage between Jessie Moore (petitioner) and Martin Moore was made absolute, with costs against respondent.

SHAW v. SHAW.

On the motion of Mr. Gibson, the decree nisi granted on the 12th November, 1884, for the dissolution of marriage between Edmund Elkanah Shaw (petitioner) and Mary Ann Shaw was made absolute, with costs against co-respondent J. S. Mason.

FOSTER v. FOSTER.

On the motion of Mr. Gibson, the decree nisi of the 11th November last for the dissolution of marriage of Mary Foster (petitioner) with Charles B. Foster was made absolute, with costs against respondent.

GODWIN v. GODWIN.

On the motion of Mr. W. J. Foster, the decree nisi granted 12th November for the dissolution of marriage between James Godwin (petitioner) and Jessie Randall Mortimer Godwin was made absolute, with costs against Robert King, co-respondent.

SWADDLING v. SWADDLING.

This was a suit for dissolution of marriage between Charles Henry Swaddling (petitioner) and Annie Swaddling, formerly Annie Norton, on the ground of the latter's adultery with Edwin Henry Porter, co-respondent, who had since gone to the Soudan. Dr. Sly appeared on behalf of the petitioner. It appeared that the parties were married on the 15th June, 1878, at North Shore, according to the rites of the Wesleyan Church. They lived happily together until last year, three children being the issue of the marriage. In October last respondent, who had previously been in the habit of allowing co-respondent—who at the time was a constable—to visit her during the absence of her husband, was detected in the act of adultery with him.

The respondent did not appear, and the decree nisi was granted, returnable within six months, with costs against co-respondent.

SAUERBIER v. SAUERBIER.

Mr. Ralston appeared for the petitioner, Augustus Sauerbier, and Mr. Wise for the respondent, Maria Sauerbier. Before the evidence in the suit was proceeded with, his Honor gave his decision in regard to a petition on behalf of respondent for alimony. He thought he ought to refuse the application, because although the petitioner had not been living with his wife, he had allowed her to live in his house, and had maintained her. No precedent had been placed before him for granting alimony under such circumstances, and it would be a dangerous thing to do where the husband had provided his wife with a home, pending the hearing of the suit. The application was therefore refused, without costs; but petitioner was directed to pay £15, in order to enable respondent to defend the suit. The issues were marriage and adultery, and the defence set up by respondent was a denial of the adultery, and cruelty and adultery on the part of the petitioner. The petitioner's case was closed, and evidence was being called on behalf of respondent, when the Court adjourned.

INSOLVENCY COURT.—Monday.

In the matter of J. H. Marsh, an examination meeting was held and terminated.

In the matter of John Johnson, the third meeting which was adjourned from the 13th instant was terminated.

COMPULSORY SEQUESTRATIONS.

(Before His Honor Mr. District Court Judge Dowling.)

TOMLIN v. WELBRAN.

An action to recover £200, damages for injury sustained by the plaintiff (a minor, whose mother as his next friend brought the action) owing to the negligence of defendant's servant. Mr. G. B. Simpson, instructed by Messrs. Gannon and M'Laughlin, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Richards for the defence. The case for the plaintiff was that, owing to the negligence of the defendant's servant, a carter, a dray was backed so as to jam his hand and cut his left thumb off, whereby he was rendered incapable for many weeks of working. The defence was contributory negligence. Verdict for £100.

VANSE v. BADMINTON.

To recover £100, of which £80 was the value of eight galvanised iron tanks which the plaintiff claimed as his property, and accused the defendant of wrongfully converting to his own use; and £20 for damages alleged to have been sustained by this wrongful conversion. Mr. O'Connor, instructed by Mr. A. H. M'Culloch, appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. G. B. Simpson, instructed by Shorter and Fitzgerald, for the defence. Judgment reserved.

POLICE.

Mr. O'Malley Clarke, S.M., presided on the Charge side of the Central Police Court yesterday. Fanny Hogan, 50, was sentenced to three months' hard labour for vagrancy. Thomas Smith, 18, for drunkenness, disorderly conduct, and obscenity, was fined £4, or 14 days. Samuel Smith and William O'Connor, two labourers, aged 19, were sentenced to three months' hard labour for having in their possession three fowls reasonably suspected to have been stolen from the premises of Mr. Herbert J. Steele, at Darlington. Margaret Thompson and Thomas Opie were fined 40s., or 14 days, for drunkenness and indecent language. Elizabeth Murphy, 17, was sent to gaol for three months, having no lawful visible means of support. Marie Kreamer, 39, a woman of ill repute, was sentenced to three months' hard labour for behaving in a riotous manner in Wexford-street. It was stated in evidence by the police that her house was the resort of the worst class of French criminal express and thieves of the lowest character. John Hart, 21, a labourer, was fined £10, or four months, for a cowardly and unprovoked assault upon Alfred George Verry. The prisoner was rambling about the streets with a number of half-drunken companions, and having accosted Mr. Verry deliberately struck him several heavy blows in the face. Rebecca Wright, 60, no occupation, was fined £5, or two months, for having offered a tramway ticket for sale, contrary to bylaw No. 5. Alfred Spencer, 13, was sent to the cells until 6 p.m., for having stolen a purse, a key, some tram tickets, and 1s., the property of Joseph Bott; also, two hats and a hymnbook, the property of David Frame and Robert Wilson. Maria O'Malley, 55, having no means of support, was sent to gaol for three months, with hard labour.

Mr. Leopold Yates, D.S.M. presided in the Charge Division of the Water Police Court yesterday. A number of inebriates were fined in various amounts, and given the usual alternative of a term in gaol. Mary Elizabeth Bury was sent to gaol for one month, with hard labour, for drunkenness and riotous behaviour in Phillip-street. James Lewis and Bartholomew M'Carthy were fined 10s. each or 48 hours' and three days' imprisonment respectively, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. James Driscoll was fined 20s., or seven days' gaol, for being drunk and disorderly on the Circular Quay. Bernard Donnelly was sentenced to two months' imprisonment, with hard labour, for having no visible lawful means of support. George Clarke, a labourer, was fined £5 or three months' gaol, for using obscene language in Argyle-street. He was also fined 20s., or seven days' gaol, for being drunk and disorderly in Kent-street, and for assaulting a constable whilst he was in the execution of his duty he was sent to gaol for a month. A seaman named George Rickett, 21 years of age, was fined £5, or, in default of payment, three months' gaol, for using indecent language on the Flagstaff Hill. Michael O'Hehir was sent to prison for a month, for assaulting a constable whilst in the execution of his duty. He was likewise fined £5, or three months' gaol, for having used obscene language in Burton-street. Prisoner was further fined 20s., or seven days, for drunkenness in Crown-street. Thomas Hitchings, for making use of obscene language in Cowper-street, Waverley, was fined £2, or a month's gaol. He was also fined for drunkenness. A New Zealander named William Harding was fined 40s., or seven days in gaol, for behaving in a riotous manner on the South Head road at Woollahra. Charles H. Croad, for having no visible lawful means of support, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, with hard labour. Frederick Schubert, a German, was fined 10s., or 48 hours' gaol, for being drunk in a boat in the harbour on Sunday morning. Senior-constable Skinner stated that the man was lying in the bottom of the boat, which was right in the fairway, and he had to take him out of the craft and put him on board the police launch for safety's sake. When rescued from his perilous position he commenced to abuse Skinner. Mr. Yates told the prisoner that he had behaved in a most ungrateful manner, as the constable had in all probability been the means of saving his life. Arajas, a native of Malta, was charged by warrant with maliciously wounding a countryman of his named Cammello Mallia. The affair occurred on the 17th instant at the Bondi sewer works. The men had some words over money matters, which culminated in a row. Prisoner took up a thick stick and struck the complainant on the arm with it, breaking the limb, whereby he had been incapacitated from work. Prisoner, who reserved his defence, was committed to take his trial at the Court of Quarter Sessions. Bail was not allowed. Mr. Whittingdale Johnson, S.M., disposed of the business in the Summons Division. Inspector E. Oram obtained convictions in a number of cases for breaches of the Municipal Transit Commissioners' byelaws. 15 private cases were also dealt with.

At the Redfern Police Court yesterday, before Mr. Abbott, S.M., Terence M'Ateer, 59, was fined 20s., in default seven days' imprisonment, for having been drunk in the Court. On Friday last he was also charged with lottering on the footway of Raglan-street on the 3rd instant. During the hearing of the case he behaved in a most excited manner, and made use of a great deal of profanity. He was fined £3, with 5s. costs, or two months' additional imprisonment. Margaret M'Geary, charged with assaulting Peter M'Geary, her husband, by striking him with candlestick and tomahawk, was fined 40s., in default 21 days. George Morgan, 29, a wood-turner, was fined 5s. for drunkenness. He was also charged with committing an aggravated assault on his daughter, Josephine Morgan, 2½ years of age. Mary Jane Morgan, defendant's wife, stated that he had been drinking lately; on Saturday afternoon last he was going out, and witness remonstrated with him; he made a blow at her with the buckle of his belt, but hit himself instead on the forehead; he then ran into the bedroom, and taking up two ornaments threw them at the children; one of them struck the girl on the temple, inflicting the cut which was now visible. Mr. Abbott said he was sorry he could not order defendant to be flogged, and fined him £10, or four months' imprisonment. Joseph Pearson, charged on warrant with deserting his wife, Annie Pearson, was ordered to pay 15s. per week for 12 months, with 5s 10d. costs of Court. The further hearing of the case M. J. Madden versus Thomas and Lancelot Alderson, for a common nuisance, in keeping the waters of Shea's Creek dammed up on their premises, was then proceeded with. Reginald Hansard, who had been summoned to produce the lease under which defendants occupied the land, stated that he had not the custody of it, but that Mr. Buckland, Sir Daniel Cooper's agent, had it in his possession; John Russell, re-called, stated that he was present when the conversation took place between Mr. Madden and Lancelot Alderson with regard to the state of the dam, and that he was instructed by the Mayor to see about it, as the complaints were so numerous; the impression conveyed to witness' mind was that defendant called in question the fairness of Mr. Whittingdale Johnson's decision in the previous case. This closed the case for the prosecution, and defendants stating that they had witnesses to call, Mr. Roberts, senior, proceeded to examine them. Ambrose Rossiter stated that he was a gardener living in Young-street, he had lived there for 30 years about 40 yards from defendants' premises; he had never found the dam offensive, on the contrary, considered it was something in his favour; he had never experienced any bad smell from the dam, but the smell from the creeks running into it was very bad; property had increased in value in the neighbourhood; his horse drank the water out of the dam nearly every day. Cross-examined by Mr. Williamson: I used to get manure for my garden from the late Mr. Alderson, and gave him flowers in exchange; if the floodgates were removed there would be more smell, as the matter would be confined to a smaller space; he could not say that 19 houses out of 33 in Wellington-street had been untenanted during the last six months owing to the smell from the dam. Richard Seymour stated that he was inspector of nuisances for the city of Sydney, and had been connected with the Sanitary Department for 31 years. He had examined the whole of Shea's Creek from time to time, and the creeks running into it; the drainage from the houses from Botany-street, Surry Hills, to Cleveland-street, and from Riley-street to Dowling-street, Moore Park, flows into it; it is ordinary house drainage refuse water, &c.; Waterloo and Redfern also drained into it; the smell from the creek was very bad at Baptist's gardens; the new Government sewer will divert the drainage from the creek; he knew the dam; he examined it on the 2nd April last; he washed his hands in it; there was no smell from the water; if the dam were emptied it would be more injurious, as the body of water kept the smell down, but he had never seen it empty; nothing offensive was discharged into the creek from defendants' tannery in Bourke-street, owing to the system of filtration instituted by them after a Supreme Court action; he did not consider the dam in any way injurious. By Mr. Williamson: He could not say that the backing up of 500,000 gallons of the water from Shea's Creek would not cause a nuisance; he got the smell from Baptist's Creek when he was close alongside of it; he never saw any scum on the dam, or defendants' workmen removing it with implements. By Mr. Roberts: He was ordered to examine all noxious trades within 16 miles of Sydney by the Royal Commission appointed to inquire into the matter; any smell in the neighbourhood of the dam he would attribute to the creek above it; there was an offensive odour at the mouth of Whiting's sewer, and he saw a number of "gastric gems" rising to the surface. John Moore Small stated that he was the engineer in connection with the new Government sewerage scheme. The main sewer running from Phelps-street to Cook's River was completed, as also several subsidiary sewers running into it; when Young-street was opened up by the council a branch sewer would be laid up it; these sewers when in working order would divert all the drainage from Shea's Creek, and the dam would then have to depend on storm-water for its supply. Sarah Warren, a widow, living in Wellington-street, stated that her husband died two years ago; he had been in defendants' employ for 35 years; she never experienced any smell from the dam; George Frederick Dansey, health officer for the city of Sydney for the last six years, stated that he knew Shea's Creek and the dam in question; an immense amount of offensive matter was brought down the creek; the dam of itself was not offensive, and he would not consider it injurious to health; typhoid would be more likely to be caused by the drains which ran into the dam, stinking aloud; the smell from the creek was sickening, but there was none from the dam; he believed if the dam were emptied the smell would be unbearable, as he was of opinion the water in the dam kept the nuisance in abeyance. By Mr. Williamson: He had never seen the dam empty, and did not know that others who had had stated there was no smell after the first day; he had seen boys bathing in the dam recently; he could not smell the stench from the creek 50 yards away, but got the full benefit of it at 20 or 30 yards distance; he knew of no complaints made by residents in the neighbourhood. The further hearing of the case was postponed till Wednesday next, defendants acknowledging themselves bound each in the sum of £100 to appear.

MARINE BOARD.

At a meeting of the Marine Board yesterday afternoon, there were present Captains Hixson (president), Jenkins, M'Lean, Moodie, and Robertson, and Commander Lindeman (secretary). An inquiry was held into the circumstances under which the schooner Trusty was lost in the Manning River on the 7th instant. John Gorecki, master of the vessel when she was wrecked, said that it was not possible to get her off; nobody was lost or hurt by the occurrence; the Trusty was a fore-and-aft topsail schooner owned by G. and S. Priddey, timber merchants, Erskine-street, and was partly insured; she became a total wreck on May 7 while attempting to enter the river in ballast; the flood-tide signals were up; there was a good sea on the bar; he had gone in when there were heavier seas on; the tug did not come out to them; there was too much sea on; the master did what he usually did, kept inside the bar and waved to them; they had all sail on when they attempted the bar, the wind being S.W.; and when they had got over the first and second breaks the schooner shipped a heavy sea; the mate and another man were at the wheel; the stanchion that the block was made fast to all carried away; the steering gear got out of order; he then letgo the anchors, as she had become unmanageable; they drifted along to the northward inside the break, the water rolling in on all sides, and the vessel parted from her anchors about 4 the next morning; she then beached, and the witness and the crew jumped ashore; they were northward of the leading marks; he had had much experience of the Manning bar; two other vessels got ashore before the Trusty; the Trusty was a very awkward vessel, as she would not steer well; he did not consult anyone about going in; there were five in the crew; he kept well to windward; the breeze was a nice light one; he stood in the rigging looking out; the vessel drew 5ft. 4in. aft, and was well found. William Raffalle, cook and seaman of the Trusty, gave corroborative testimony. Captain Gorecki being re-called, stated that it was only when he had got ashore that he saw the "stand off" signals flying. At this stage the enquiry was postponed for a week for the production of further evidence.

An enquiry was also held into the case of the Flirt, totally wrecked at Savaii Island, Navigator Group, on the 31st March last. Carl S. Newhaus, the master, stated that the Flirt was a brigantine of 100 tons, belonging to H. P. Palser, of Sydney, and was insured; he did not know this when she was wrecked; she was trading around the South Sea Islands with a general cargo, and had only 20 tons of it left; she had some island produce on board; the vessel was lost by driving from her anchors in a heavy squall, which came on suddenly and drove her on the reef in spite of all his exertions to keep her off; the squall was so sudden that there was no time to furl the sails; the bay where the vessel had been anchored was quite open. At this stage the enquiry was adjourned for a week for the production of further evidence.

MEMORIAL TO THE LATE BISHOP BARKER.

At the Church Society's House, Phillip-street, yesterday afternoon, a public meeting of members of the Church of England was held, for the purpose of taking steps towards augmenting the memorial fund for the erection of a chapter-house at St. Andrew's Cathedral in memory of the late Bishop of Sydney, Dr. Barker. Sir Alfred Stephen, C.B., K.C.M.G., presided; and there were present, in addition to others, the Primate (Dr. Barry), the Colonial Secretary (the Hon. Alexander Stuart), the Very Rev. the Dean of Sydney, Messrs. Robert Hills, H. K. A. Allen, J. F. Wise, R. Chadwick, Christopher Rolleston, C.M.G., W. E. Toose, M. Metcalfe, and J. Beaumont; Judge Dowling, Dr. Broughton Kyngdon; Messrs. W. Stephen, Alfred Cook, and C. R. Walsh; the Hon. Edward Knox; Mr. T. Robertson, Mr. G. W. F. Addison, the Hon. A. Gordon; the Revs. J. A. Allpress, Canon King, the Ven. Archdeacon Child, Revs. Canon Sharp, Dr. J. C. Corlette, A. W. Pain, J. D. Langley, S. H. Child, M. Archdall, T. B. Tress, E. J. Sturdee, R. Taylor, E. M. Saliniere, S. S. Tovey, H. M. Jackson, J. N. Manning, Canon Gunther, Humphrey Fryer, and E. D. Madgwick.

The Chairman stated that they had met for the purpose of carrying out—as he hoped finally and effectually—the resolution arrived at by the Synod in the month of August, 1883, to erect or provide for some memorial which would testify to the great respect, regard, and affection which the colony entertained for the memory of the late Bishop Barker. Those who were present might remember, in the first instance, that it was resolved by the Synod that steps should be taken for providing a memorial; then there arose questions as to what that memorial should be. At first it was proposed that only a chapter-house should be erected; not a chapter-house with a church society's house or rooms for holding the Synod's meetings in. There were considerable differences of opinion as to the best mode of testifying their respect for the late Bishop, and the mere fact of differences existing caused delay. Then came the question—supposing there was to be a chapter-house and rooms for the meetings of the Synod, where should the site be? There was some discussion and difficulty about this, and finally it was resolved, in October, 1883, after several meetings, and after obtaining plans, that a chapter-house should be erected on the Cathedral ground, and one of the principal reasons for having the memorial in the form of a chapter-house was that Bishop Barker had often expressed a wish that one should be erected near the Cathedral, and if that wish were carried out it must be erected on the Cathedral ground. He doubted whether it was desirable to provide for meetings of the Synod on that ground, because as the population and number of Church members increased there would not be sufficient room for the Synod

ECZEMA TWENTY YEARS.—My gratitude to God is unbounded for the relief I have obtained from the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. I have been troubled with eczema on my legs for twenty years. I had not a comfortable night for years, the burning and itching were so intense. Now I am happy to say I have no trouble. Only the liver-coloured patches on the limbs remain as a token of my former misery. HENRY L. SHIPE, 186, West Ave., Rochester, N.Y.—[ADVT.]

In the Import markets to-day business was rather quiet, the transactions coming under notice being chiefly for the supply of immediate requirements. As usual on Monday, the trade demand for flour was small; sales were made at from £8 to £8 5s. for ordinary brands, and up to £10 for roller-made flour. There is still a steady inquiry for tea, and besides the quittance of a parcel of low quality at a price not named, we hear of the sale of a couple of good trade lines of boxes at 14s. and 15s. The sugar market remains firm, especially for whites, and must be strengthened by the advices of an advance of 2s. at Mauritius. About 2000 pockets of slightly s of any importance is usually tried in England at assizes or at the Old Bailey, and the grand jury at assizes are, to use Blackstone's description, "usually gentlemen of the best figure in the county." Many of them are magistrates, of whom several have, as a rule, been called to the Bar, and paid special attention to the subject of criminal law. The inquiry before them is, of course, one-sided, as they only hear evidence for the prosecution, and their only duty is to determine whether there is sufficient cause to call upon the party to answer the charge. Yet we doubt whether it can truly be said that these gentlemen conduct their inquiries "without a tithe of the deliberation" exercised by the Attorney-General. The Attorney-General of this colony, being in fact director of all prosecutions, has an enormous mass of depositions brought before him, and is responsible for the prosecution or non-prosecution of every case committed to quarter sessions or assizes. This involves an amount of labour from which many a man might shrink, and it seems well-nigh impossible that in such work there may not be occasional errors. Whether the best conceivable way of correcting such errors, when they consist of failing to prosecute where there ought to be a prosecution, is by applying to the Court for leave to file an information, may be open to doubt; but under the law as it stands it is the only way open, and this way the Court has now declared shall be open no longer. The principle is one not affecting cases of daily practice, but for all that it is of no slight importance, since it places in the hands of the Attorney-General of the day a power which, though no doubt exercised with a becoming sense of responsibility, is of such magnitude as to raise the question whether to leave it without check in the hands of any Minister is in accordance with the principles of our free Constitution.

The recurrence of QUEEN'S Birthday and the return of the Contingent are so nearly simultaneous that it is a natural thought to bring them together. A special recognition of the former is due, under the circumstances, this year; and a suitable reception must be accorded to the latter. It would detract from both to separate them, but by taking them on the same day there would be a demonstration less in enthusiasm only to that witnessed on the third of March. One thing to be thought of in this conjunction is the sentiment which it would evoke. And whilst immediate danger is past, the parties to the late excitement are not yet out of the wood. There is no intention to set aside any considerable number of persons who will make warfare their life. The countries that are doing so may shortly find themselves at a great disadvantage compared with those the bulk of whose population is engaged in peaceful industry. But the spirit of self-reliance and self-defence, together with a satisfactory knowledge of the use of arms, may have to be cherished by the most pacific people. It is obvious that in the absence of danger the sentiments named will depend to some extent on well-planned demonstrations. It is equally natural to aim at gratifying popular desire on this subject. It will be a pleasant thing to the men returning home; pleasant to those who will come up from the country to make part of the pageant. To them it will give the stamp of reality to Volunteer movements. It is a quality which is greatly needed, but which has had less thought in the past than it must have hereafter. It may appear like a piece of vanity to measure our strength by the numbers of men whom we can place in the field, but at the risk of the charge of vanity it will be of service to do so. One of the deepest impressions made in England by our sending troops to Egypt was made by the fact that we were able to send them. It was not only our willingness and despatch, but the reserve power which has been growing up during the last ten or twenty years. That day on which the Contingent returns may be devoted to a display of defensive power which may prove sufficient for all present purposes, and become the nucleus of forces fully able to guard these shores and all the cities behind them.

In opening a conversazione at St. Peter's, Woolloomooloo, on Saturday, the Bishop of SYDNEY found an opportunity to speak a few weighty and well-considered words. The bulk of the exhibits were works of art, works appealing to the taste and imagination, and the BISHOP implied that this was a reason why he was found taking part in a parochial gathering. It seemed to him that there were points in connection with the gathering of a more than local character:—"In the first place, it appeared to signify the idea that we in this community required to stimulate and to foster everything that might tend towards general culture, and more especially to the cultivation of taste and imagination—a better and more full appreciation of imagination and of beauty;" and there were many things rendering this necessary. In the first place, though we had much beauty about our city and colony, we had very little that was really impressive in its character; nothing in scenery of the "wild alpine nature;" nothing in architecture comparable to the buildings which adorn and instruct cities and peoples of older nations. These things, or fair substitutes for them, we had to create for ourselves; and so convinced was he of the importance of this that he doubted if we had done anything better in this country than the accumulation of painters' and sculptors' masterpieces in our galleries. But we had not done enough in this way, and particularly were we lacking in those things we should do of and for ourselves. We must draw to a much larger extent upon our own natural resources, and we should begin to do this perhaps when we began to make a universal recognition of this land of our birth or adoption, as a home to be fashioned and furnished with all the accessories of home, and not as a mere place of sojourn. Surely it is easy to see here some clear and important truths very practically put—truths, moreover, that in the heat and haste and temporary character of a great deal of our colonial life have been missed—and easier still, as we may confess with sorrow, to see the loss which we have incurred, and the bad foundations we have laid by our neglect of these matters. Imagination, sentiment, taste, are amongst the great wants of the rising generation in this colony, and it may also be said that they are amongst the possessions most broadly distinguishing the man from the brute. We may thank the BISHOP for his effort to give them the prominence they deserve, and we may hope that his words will not fail of the effect they seek.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE scarcity of water is still a matter for earnest consideration. Some economy in consumption has taken place; but very little rain unfortunately has fallen, and it is not anticipated in large quantities for some time to come. The volume of the Lachlan stream cannot always be maintained in its present magnitude unless rains arrive, and therefore a strict necessity exists not only for a continued exercise of economy, but for searching for sources of supply which will supplement those the citizens are relying on. Yesterday Mr. E. O. Moriarty, Engineer for Harbours and Rivers, and Mr. J. Trevor Jones, City Engineer, paid a visit of inspection to Scarborough Park, where they had been informed a large supply of water was stored, which might by easy process be conveyed to the city. The park, which is nine miles from Sydney, is in the neighbourhood of Sandringham, and is about 300 yards from the picturesque spot known as Lady Robinson's Beach. In its area it is 100 acres, 28 of which were the gift of Mr. Thomas Holt, the remainder being the contribution of the Government towards the recreation of the residents. The two gentlemen named were shown over the park by Alderman Bowmer and Mr. Samuel Cook, two of the trustees. Their attention was first drawn to an abyssinian tube well sunk at one end of the park. This small instrument, it appears, has been driven to a depth of only 12 feet; and, so far as can be ascertained, it has tapped an unlimited supply of water. Attention was next directed to a lagoon which is 1¼ miles in length and about 12 chains wide. For 23 years previous to 1884 this had never been dry, and though water has now receded from the surface, the bed, which consists of sand, has been found to contain large quantities. The distance between the lagoon and the waterworks at Botany is five miles, but there seems no insuperable difficulty in laying pipes the whole way. Mr. Moriarty and Mr. Jones were convinced that water was present in the bed of the lagoon in such large quantities as to be valuable for supplementing present stores. Mr. Jones has decided to cause levels of the route to Botany to be taken at once, and also to have experimental wells sunk to a depth of six or eight feet, to ascertain the probable quantity of water that may be secured. He also intends having the water analysed, that it may be decided whether it may be placed in a potable class.

ON Friday evening next, the Attorney-General will entertain the Judges and other gentlemen, members of the bar, at a banquet in honour of the Chief Justice, whose portrait, recently painted by Miss Bell, will be handed over on that occasion, to be hung in the Supreme Court.

THEIR Honors Sir James Martin, C.J., Mr. Justice Faucett, and Sir George Innes constituted the Full Court to hear Equity appeals. The day was spent hearing the judgment of the Primary Judge in Mackenzie v. Mackenzie, and the evidence taken before his Honor in the suit read. The defendant, Dr. W. F. Mackenzie, appeals from the decree of his Honor below, by which the plaintiff, Mr. John Mackenzie, examiner of coalfields, was declared to be his partner in certain mining properties at Wallerawang. The appeal stands at part heard. His Honor the Primary Judge sat in the Jury Court, to inquire whether there was sufficient property concerned in the suit Macpherson and others v. Sutherland and others to give the Court jurisdiction in the case. It will be remembered that the plaintiffs seek to be reinstated as members of the Synod of the Presbyterian Church of Eastern Australia. Two witnesses were examined on the particular question before the Court, and counsel proceeded to argue the matter. The hearing will be resumed to-day. His Honor Mr. Justice Windeyer sat all day in the Divorce Jurisdiction and disposed of a number of cases. In Blackwell v. Blackwell, Moore v. Moore, Shaw v. Shaw, Foster v. Foster, and Godwin v. Godwin, the decrees nisi for dissolution of marriage were made absolute. In Swaddling v. Swaddling, a suit on the part of the husband for the dissolution of marriage with his wife Annie Swaddling on the ground of adultery, the decree nisi was granted returnable in six months.

THE Minister for Mines (the Hon. J. P. Abbott) and party arrived at Silverton from Menindie on Saturday afternoon. The Ministerial party were met three miles out of the town by a large number of the leading residents, and were escorted into Silverton. At a banquet tendered to the Ministerial party on Saturday evening, Mr. Abbott, in responding to the toast of "The Ministry," referred to the mining industry. He remarked that his great aim had been to amend the Mining Act with a view to decentralise its administration. There would always be a difficulty in this direction, owing to the necessity for constant reference to the Land Office, but he hoped to devise some scheme by which the difficulty would be surmounted. Our full telegraphic report of the proceedings is held over.

WE have received from the Government Astronomer the rain map and returns for 1884, and notice that the reporting stations now number 496, and that much additional matter has been put in, more particularly a table showing the annual rainfall at all the stations during the past 14 years. There are several gaps in this table, which Mr. Russell asks those who can do so to help to fill up; promising a more complete edition of it if such returns are sent to him. The importance of collecting all the rain records is so great that it is thought such a request will meet with a ready response.

A PROCLAMATION issued in a supplement to Friday's Gazette closes Lake Macquarie against the use of fishing nets for a further period of two years from the 9th May.

ON Saturday last the members of the Railway Bridges Inquiry Commission—consisting of the president, Mr. G. A. Morell, C.E.; Mr. W. M'D. Courtney, C.E.; Professor W. H. Warren and Mr. Owen Blacket—revisited Penrith to make further tests of the iron bridge over the river Nepean. The tests made during the previous visit of the commission were incomplete, in consequence of a high wind which was blowing at the time affecting the accuracy of the testing apparatus. On Saturday the weather was all that could be desired, and the tests were very satisfactory. Sixteen dead-load tests in various positions, four full-speed tests, and two full-speed and brake tests were among those obtained, the engines used being three of the heaviest American goods engines employed on the Great Western Railway; and several tests were secured from passenger, goods, and ballast trains that passed over the bridge during the time the commissioners were at work. This testing of the Penrith bridge completes the testing of the bridges into the condition of which the commission was appointed to inquire, and it is understood that during the course of the inspection and testing of the bridges a large amount of information which should prove very useful in bridge construction in the colony in the future has been obtained. The members of the commission will now proceed with as much expedition as is possible to complete the diagrams and calculations necessary in relation to the tests that have been made, and to supplement as far as is desirable the evidence which has already been taken from persons who have had to do with the erection, the inspection, or the maintenance of the bridges. A progress report was made to the Government by the commission a short time ago, and as soon as the work above mentioned is finished the commission's final report will be submitted. Professor Kernot, of the Melbourne University, who is a member of the commission, will be in Sydney shortly to assist in the closing work connected with the inquiry.

MR. W. S. E. M. CHARTERS, formerly gold commissioner, police magistrate, and mining warden in the colony of Queensland, died at the Prince Alfred Hospital on Saturday last. Mr. Charters assisted at the discovery of the Charters Towers goldfield, which was named after him, and was well known as an active and impartial magistrate in the northern parts of Queensland. Some six years ago he met with an accident to his foot, from which he never altogether recovered, and in consequence of which he retired on a pension from his official duties, after having been in the service of the Government of Queensland for about 18 years. Recently, his health having become very much broken, he came down to Sydney to undergo treatment at the Prince Alfred Hospital, where he died as stated above.

MR. H. O. FORBES, the explorer, has cabled from Batavia to the Geographical Society of Australasia, advising his arrival there, and stating that he will remain in Java some time collecting porters. It will probably be the beginning of July before he reaches Port Moresby.

THE Sydney Light Horse on Saturday presented a smart and soldierlike appearance at Moore Park, under the command of Captain Macdonald. They were placed on the right of the line, next to the Field Artillery, and although the firing of the salute was a rather severe test for the horses they stood it remarkably well and kept a good line. The squadron took part in the march past, movements in conjunction with the Field Artillery, and also the trot past, and acquitted themselves well, particularly in the movement when the leaders salute with drawn swords in passing the reviewing officer. The anniversary of the Queen's Birthday will be the first occasion of the kind on which cavalry have participated in the contemplated manœuvres; and as the corps are now armed with cavalry carbines, it would be of more than usual interest if, in addition to the movements displayed on Saturday, their efficiency as mounted rifles in skirmishing, &c., were tested.

THE quarterly battalion parade of the 3rd Regiment Volunteer Infantry took place at Windsor on Saturday afternoon last, under Colonel Holborow, Captain Hill and the officers of the various companies also being present. The evolutions were satisfactorily gone through. At the conclusion of the parade Captain H. Byrnes, of the No. 1 Company, Parramatta, requested Lieutenant Ferris, of the same company, to step forward. He then, on behalf of the privates of that company, in a few appropriate remarks, presented Lieutenant Ferris with a handsome gold medal, suitably inscribed, as a memento of their esteem, and to mark his recent marriage. The recipient returned thanks for the kindness of the privates in a feeling speech.

A PRELIMINARY meeting of gentlemen favourable to giving a public reception to the Contingent on its return from Suakim was held at the Oxford Hotel yesterday afternoon. The chair was occupied by the Hon. John Sutherland, and it was resolved that a requisition be presented to the Mayor asking him to call a public meeting to decide on the best means of recognising the patriotism of the Contingent in volunteering to serve in the recent campaign in Egypt.

A LARGE and representative meeting of Church of England clergy and laity was held at the Church Society's House, Phillip-street, yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of taking steps for augmenting the Bishop Barker Memorial Fund, in order that the somewhat delayed work may be carried out without further loss of time. Sir Alfred Stephen presided, and the speakers included the Bishop of Sydney, the Hon. Alexander Stuart, the Dean of Sydney, Rev. J. D. Langley, and Canon King. Resolutions cognate to the subject of the gathering were unanimously passed, and it was resolved that annual payments of subscriptions be allowed, if desired, to extend over three or more years. About £420 was promised or subscribed in the room.

THE anniversary festival service of the New South Wales branch of the Church of England Temperance Society was held at St. Andrew's Cathedral last evening. The musical portion of the service was conducted by the Cathedral choir, assisted by the choirs of the affiliated parochial branches, and the sermon was delivered by the Rev. G. North Ash, M.A., who based his remarks upon the following passage of Scripture:—"Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." In the course of his address the rev. gentleman said that not only had the existence of that society been justified, but its practical utility had been demonstrated by practical results, which left no room for any cavil. It was his deliberate conviction that the dual basis was the main cause of the remarkable progress that society had made, and not only that society but the work of temperance generally. All people might see that their society was, in fact and in truth, a temperance society, and not one that was animated by mistaken zeal, or morbid or mistaken enthusiasm. He dwelt upon the importance of temperance in all the duties and relationships of life, and described the temperate man as a man who exercised self-control in all cases in daily life, in speech as well as in conduct. The annual general meeting of the society will be held in the Protestant Hall at half-past 7 o'clock this evening, and will be under the presidency of the Primate.

A MEETING of members of the congregation and others connected with St. Andrew's School-church, Summer Hill, was held in the school-church at Summer Hill last night. There was a large attendance, and at the commencement of the proceedings the Hon. Alexander Stuart presided. Amongst those present were the Revs. J. D. Langley, Joseph Barnier, S. Fox, John Vaughan (incumbent), and Mr. H. S. Badgery, M.L.A. The meeting was opened with the usual devotional exercises, after which the Rev. John Vaughan read the report of the church building committee, showing that the sum of £900 was still required to complete the work. The Hon. Alexander Stuart delivered a brief address, in the course of which he referred to the progress of the church at Summer Hill, and appealed to those present to continue to support the incumbent and committee in their work by liberally contributing towards the funds. At the conclusion of his remarks Mr. Stuart left the meeting, and the chair was then taken by Mr. Badgery. Interesting addresses were delivered by the Revs. J. D. Langley and J. Barnier, Mr. Badgery, and others. During the evening musical selections were rendered by an efficient choir.

THE usual monthly meeting of the committee of the City Night Refuge and Soup Kitchen was held on Friday, 24th April. Present—Captain R. Dean (presiding), Messrs. Guy, Walker, Torning, and Gilles. During the period under notice relief given was as follows:—Breakfasts, 1438; dinners, 2317; beds, 1695. Employment was also found for 40 persons.

A DEBATE was opened at St. Stephen's Young Men's Institute, Newtown, on Friday, May 8, the subject being, "That England should have gone to war with Russia without so much delay," which was ably advocated by Mr. F. S. D. Macqueen, to which Mr. Shaw moved an amendment, "That the policy of the Gladstone Government in averting the war so far has been advisable." After a spirited discussion, which lasted for two evenings, the original motion was carried on Friday, the 15th, by a majority of two. The principal speakers were for the original motion—Mr E. W. Molesworth (Speaker), P. A. Macqueen (Premier), W. Wilson, and C. B. H. Smith; and for the amendment, Rev. D. D. Rutledge, Messrs. W. Blackett, C. Blackett, and Abigail. This institute is now making very good progress, and the debates are animated and well conducted. In connection with the institute there are chess clubs, a gymnasium, and a very fair library, which are available to members free of charge.

WITH regard to a paragraph that appeared in yesterday's issue respecting the imprisonment of the captain of a wrecked vessel for the non-payment of wages to his crew, an error appears to have been made in reference to the name. The wrecked vessel in question was the Howard D. Troop, and the name of the captain was Saunders. The Lorenzo was the name of another vessel that was wrecked about the same time. Some of the men belonging to the Howard D. Troop have accepted bills for the amount of wages due to them, and have sought other employment, but about ten of them still remain in that very useful institution, the Sailors' Home, where there are also about the same number of men from the Lorenzo.

WE learn that Mr. W. Pritchard, who met with a severe buggy accident at the corner of Booth-street and Pyrmont Bridge-road, Camperdown, some six weeks since, owing to a large stone having been left in the road, is now sufficiently recovered to be able to come into town, although the injured foot is still far from well.

MR. THOMAS LEEDER, who held the position of Council Clerk of St. Peters for over 11 years, was last week presented with a very handsome illuminated address by many of the ratepayers and friends in the district. The company assembled at the Town Hall, and amongst those present were Mr. G. G. Geering (Mayor of St. Peters), Aldermen Walmsley, Lambeth, M'Kechnie, and Baker (of St. Peters); Mr. W. G. Judd (Mayor) and Aldermen Jeaves and Curtis (West Botany); Messrs. J. N. and A. E. Gannon, W. H. Pigott, W. Armstrong, C. H. Lenehan, A. Harper, W. C. H. Lippmann, H. Kinsela, W. Blake, and T. Preston. The Mayor of St. Peters, in presenting the address, referred in the highest terms of appreciation to the services Mr. Leeder had rendered, and the esteem in which he was held by the people of the district generally; and called upon those present to drink the health of Mr. and Mrs. Leeder and family. Mr. Leeder, in acknowledging the compliment, explained the reason why he declined the proffered banquet, and the reasons that led him to resign his position, showing that the duties of the office had so largely increased that he found it necessary to relinquish the position in order that he might devote more attention to his city business. The company separated at 11.30 after spending a very pleasant evening. The address, which is a very handsome one, is surrounded by local views, such as the Town Hall, St. Peter's Church, and Mr. Leeder's residence. It was illuminated by Mr. John Sands, and reflects much credit on the artist.

AT a luncheon given in honour of the Ballarat Bowling Team yesterday, a report of the proceedings at which will be found in our sporting columns, Lieutenant-Colonel Smith, M.L.A., of Victoria, replying to the toast of "The Ballarat Bowling Association," referred in very complimentary terms to the action of New South Wales in sending troops to the Soudan. The offer of New South Wales, he said, was a manly, straightforward, and definite one, and was accepted in the spirit in which it was offered, while the offer which Victoria made was a very indefinite one. Mr. Dalley, by this one act alone, had upraised not only New South Wales but the whole of the Australian group of colonies in the eyes of the people of the colonies, of our kindred in other lands, and in the estimation of the whole civilised world. When he looked at the loans which were floated recently, one by Queensland and one by Victoria, he ventured to say that to no small extent was the excellent prices obtained for them to be attributed to the prompt action of New South Wales, and if the Parliaments of the surrounding colonies were to do right they would say to New South Wales: "You have set us a noble example, and we do not think it is fair to ask your people to bear all the cost, as we are all connected with it. Further, we have in the money market recently obtained a position we would not have obtained but for your action, and therefore we ask you to permit us to pay our own share of the expenses."

IT was discovered yesterday morning that Mr. C. E. Fuller's stationer's hall, Parramatta, had been burglariously entered some time between then and the hour at which it was closed on Saturday night. An inspection of the premises showed that access had been gained by mounting to the wall of some new building adjoining, and in course of erection for Mr. Fuller, and then by going through a retiring room on the first floor, one end of which had been knocked out to facilitate building operations. The door leading from this place into a passage had been temporarily nailed up, but the nails were forced by the burglar, who appears to have proceeded along the passage past a number of offices, and then down the stairs to the main floor. Here his progress was arrested by a door, but the lock of this was forced by pressure and a portion of it wrenched off. The main shop was then entered, and the till ransacked. Fortunately Saturday's takings had been locked up in the safe, and the only money the burglar obtained was a sum of £3 18s., the week's salary of one of the employees of the establishment, which had been left in an envelope in the till. This the burglar appropriated, leaving the envelope behind him. Nothing else in the place appears to have been disturbed.

YESTERDAY a slight outbreak of fire took place on the premises occupied by Mr. George Holden, No. 83, Quay-street, Darling Harbour. The bed curtains and a quantity of bedding in the front room were burned before the fire was extinguished by the inmates of the house, assisted by several neighbours. The Metropolitan Fire Brigade turned out promptly, but their services were not required.

THE following accidents were reported yesterday:—Mary Ann M'Nally, 57 years of age, residing at Exeter-place, off Elizabeth-street, received a wound on the scalp, the result of a fall. The wound, which is not considered dangerous, was treated at the Sydney Hospital. Mary Piper, 72 years of age, residing in Gloucester-street, likewise received a scalp wound, through falling on the footway in Sussex-street. She was attended to at the hospital. Alfred Crosby, a bricklayer, 21 years of age, was bitten by a native dog at the Zoological Gardens. His hand and several fingers were severely injured. It is stated that the animal got loose and bit Crosby when he attempted to catch it. A seaman named William Donnelly, who resides at No. 340, Kent-street, was in the act of getting on board one of the Balmain steamers, when, by some means, a heavy stone fell accidentally on his head, causing a compound fracture of the frontal bone. He was taken to the Sydney Hospital, and attended to by Dr. S. Loves. A labourer named Jeremiah Flynn, 30 years of age, was admitted to the Sydney Hospital, suffering from a fracture of the right tibia and other injuries, which he received whilst working at Peate's Ferry. It is stated that a barrow, laden with stone, fell from some staging and struck him, whilst he was employed beneath. Flynn, who resides at Brennan's Store, Peate's Ferry, was detained in the institution for treatment.

THE question whether a married woman can be imprisoned in default of paying a fine imposed upon her, or of having property from which payment of the fine could be levied, was raised in the Melbourne Supreme Court on Thursday on an application by a Mrs. M'Lellan to quash a warrant issued against her. She had been fined £25 by the Justices of Branxholme for selling spirits without a licence. The fine (says the Argus) was not paid, and it was then attempted to enforce it by distraint, but the police could not find any property on which to levy. The justices then ordered that she should be sent to gaol for a month. It was contended on her behalf that the imprisonment was merely an attempt to enforce payment of the amount directed to be levied by the distress warrant, and that as the proceedings were not of a criminal nature the failure to pay the sum could not be followed by imprisonment. The Court, however, held that the proceedings were of a criminal character, and that the order for her imprisonment was to punish her for having offended against the law. The application to quash the warrant of imprisonment was therefore refused.

IT is evident from indications in some of the Melbourne newspapers (says the Wagga Advertiser) that there will be a repetition next season of what we may well term the wool rate war. It seems as if, throwing calculation to the dogs, the Victorian Government is determined to secure to its metropolis, if possible, the wool trade of this great wool-producing centre—Riverina. While the woolbrokers of Sydney are naturally desirous of bringing the trade of their own colony to their own doors, the woolbrokers of Melbourne are restless in their endeavours to divert it to their city. As is usual in countries governed from a centre point, the capitalists always govern the Government. The Sydney merchant says to the Minister for Works: Unless such and such rates are fixed, trade will flow into other channels than those which flow past my wool warehouse. The Melbourne merchant says the same to the Victorian Government, and as without the support of these merchants neither Government could stand their views are coincided in and their dicta accepted as gospel. Hence it comes about that no sooner does the Victorian Government seek to secure to its merchants the trade of Riverina by reducing the freight per bale of wool to a mere nominal sum than the Government of this colony does exactly the same. And we do not see how New South Wales can do otherwise. Of course it may be argued to the reductio ad absurdum that, if Victoria chooses to carry bales of wool upon her lines of railway, making no charge whatever, we should have to follow her example. The whole competition furnishes a problem for the Commissioner for Railways which is, we admit, not easy of solution. Who can say where this war of wool rates is to end? The woolgrower is probably the only one who can stand by and gleefully rub his hands.

THE South Australian Register states that between 9 and 10 o'clock on Monday morning an exceedingly painful accident occurred at Jones, Parry, and Co.'s grain stores and chaffmills at Port Adelaide, by which a young lad named Samuel Rogers, about 16 years old, had his right leg literally torn off from below the knee. The unfortunate lad had only a few days before been brought by Mr. Jones from Mount Lofty, and was given work temporarily at the mills. On Monday morning he ascended to an upper floor, underneath which the driving engine was working. It is said that the lad trod upon an insecure board, which gave way, and his right leg going through the opening was caught in the flywheel and torn off from below the knee. The foreman, Mr. Rose, hearing cries, at once ascended to the floor, and discovered the unfortunate lad in a frightful condition; his leg was taken off above the knee. He is progressing favourably.

CREMATION under extraordinary circumstances has been performed in Paris by order of a Judge of Instruction, with the sanction of the Prefect of Police. A chemist named Kel has been in prison for many months, charged with having murdered his female servant and burned her in a stove. The prisoner had been repeatedly examined, and had persistently denied the charge. He argued, from the smallness of the stove, the impossibility of having burned a body in it. The prosecution had a fac simile made. M. Camescasse gave up a dead body from the hospitals for the purpose of the legal experiment. The body was cut up, the lighted stove was fed with the pieces, and the medical experts were astonished to find in how short a time they were reduced to a small quantity of ashes.

ON Friday (says the Goulburn Herald) a man named William H. Hullock, about 35 years of age, died suddenly at the Union Club Hotel, Sloane-street. It appears that the deceased, who had been lodging at the hotel for some days previous to last Wednesday, left there on that day and was not seen by any of the inmates about the premises till Friday about half-past 12, when he went into the bar of the hotel and called for a glass of brandy, placing a sixpence on the counter to pay for it. Mr. Stephenson, the landlord, and two of the lodgers were in the bar. The deceased was supplied with the brandy, and one of the lodgers, noticing the way in which he watered the liquor, remarked to the landlord that that man had nothing in him (meaning food). Mr. Stephenson asked the deceased if he had had anything to eat since he left, two days previously; he replied he had not. Mr. Stevenson then told him to go to the girl in the kitchen and ask for some dinner. The deceased left the bar, and some little time afterwards word was brought to the landlord that Hullock was in the yard gasping for breath. Mr. Stephenson immediately went into the yard and there saw the deceased upon his knees struggling for breath. A messenger was sent for a doctor, but before any arrived the deceased was dead. Drs. Ray and M'Killop saw the body, but they cannot positively assert the cause of death until after a post mortem is held. It is thought that in all probability the deceased died from choking, as while he was sitting at his dinner he was observed to get up and rush out into the open air. Deceased, it is believed, was a native of the colony, and had been connected with the press. He was tutor at Hillas Mount, near Taralga, for some months, but had recently come to Goulburn. He was of some literary ability, and had from time to time contributed to the Goulburn press; but he appears to have been of unsteady habits. He is said to be unmarried, and has a mother living at Ashfield. A sum of 11s. was found on him.

THE General Post Office was (says the Argus) visited on Friday by Messrs. S. H. Lambton, secretary to the General Post Office, Sydney, and A. A. Day, superintendent of the mails branch, Sydney, their object being to note the arrangements here with a view to see whether any improvements can be made in the new post-office now in course of erection at Sydney. Every facility to make a complete inspection was afforded to the visitors by Mr. M'Gowan, Deputy Postmaster-General, and the officers of the department.

IT is interesting at the present juncture to learn something about the opinions of the Russians with regard to English rule in India. Marvin, in his admirable work entitled "Reconnoitring Central Asia," writes:—"It is a curious circumstance that although Russians take a great interest in India few of them have visited it. Probably not more than half-a-dozen have penetrated to it during the last quarter of a century, and, so far as I am aware, no Russian book of travels has been written on the country during that period. Pashino (a secret Russian agent) contributed many articles to the newspapers on his return home from his various journeys (to India), but these were not of a very solid or desirable character. Russians, however, naturally attach more weight to the opinions of one of their own countrymen who has visited India than to the views of any number of English writers. Pashino holds that we cruelly oppress and exploit the people of India. The administration, he says, is composed of the needy scions of the English nobility and their retainers, who are purposely sent to India to enrich themselves at the expense of the natives. Were any European succour forthcoming, the people would rise en masse against the English and sweep them into the sea. As for the English army, the soldiers and officers acquire such effeminate ways after being a few years in the East that a hardy enemy advancing from the North would experience little difficulty in defeating them. Altogether, according to him, our rule in India is neither respectable nor strong, and when Russia and India touch one another it will not long prevail against the forces operating against it from within and without. These opinions," Marvin continues, "are not very dissimilar from those expressed after the Khivan campaign by Captain Terentyeff in his notorious work, 'Russia and England in the Struggle for Markets in Central Asia,' and still more recently by General Annenkoff in his 'Roads to India,' General Soboleff in the Russian general staff history of the Afghan war, and, finally, by Skobeleff himself in his 'Project for the Invasion of India.' To us these errors are palpable, but they are not so to the Russians."

A REMARKABLE article appears in the Nouvelle Revue. The real name of the writer is concealed. He dilates at considerable length on the Tonquin question, and by a series of paradoxes endeavours to prove that should a war arise between France and England the establishment of the former in the far east would prove the source of her ultimate success over her powerful rival in colonial domination. France, no doubt, would have tremendous difficulties to overcome in humbling her enemy, whom she would meet along the whole line from Gibraltar to Hongkong. But by fortifying and provisioning Saigon, by mobilising the French fleet in the China seas, and by utilising the strong garrisons kept in Tonquin and Cochin China, France could swoop down from the east on the colonies and possessions of England. The writer of the article, however, makes a decisive victory in the Mediterranean over the English a necessary element in the effective success to be so easily reaped by the fleet and army of France and the far east. According to the sanguine author of the article in question France has, therefore, everything to gain by her distant expeditions, and she should no longer delay in spending men and money abroad. Kelung should be kept as a pendant to Hongkong, and the Chinese should be propitiated and petted, so as to be induced to lend their aid in the future. Such is a brief summary of a curious article, which cannot fail to flatter the amour-propre of Anglophobists on the other side of the Channel.

THE Pall Mall Gazette, which may now be regarded as a pro-Russian organ in London, gives the following version of how the joint commission came to be proposed:—"After Merv had annexed itself to the Russian Empire the English Government made representations at St. Petersburg concerning the consequences which would follow from this latest extension of the Russian Empire, which brought the dominions of the Czar for the first time into immediate proximity to those of the Ameer of Afghanistan. The jealousy with which the annexation of Merv was regarded in this country may be inferred from the regret so cynically expressed by Sir Henry Rawlinson in the Nineteenth Century that England was remiss in not supplying the Tekkes with arms and powder to oppose the Russian advance, in not compelling Persia to refuse to assist the Russian army with transport and supplies, and finally in not making the voluntary submission of the Merv elders a casus belli. Such cynical reflections, and the conduct based upon so immoral a conception of our relations to mankind, together with many gross misrepresentations of the Imperial declarations as to Merv, naturally generated considerable soreness between the two Governments; and when in March, 1884, Sir Edward Thornton made representations to M. de Giers concerning the English view of the incorporation of Merv, he did not find the Russian Government disposed to enter into the question. England, said the Russian Minister, was perfectly free to enter into any relations she pleased with the States contiguous to India; the same liberty which Russia recognised as England's right she claimed for herself in dealing with States outside the range of England's influence. As for any further assurances, said M. de Giers, somewhat bitterly, its experience of the way in which its declarations have been treated—a statement, for instance, that there was no present intention of going to Merv being proclaimed as a solemn pledge never to go to Merv, a step which Russia explicitly reserved her right to take at any time—did not predispose the Russian Government to make any further communications of a similar nature. 'What propositions, then,' asked our Ambassador, 'do you propose to make?' 'None at all,' replied in effect the Russian Minister about three weeks later; 'but having regard to the great importance of an entente cordiale between the two Empires in Central Asia, we may remind you that two years ago we proposed to have the precise boundary of the Afghan region exclusively under English influence accurately marked off, for the avoidance of disputes and the establishment of a good and clear understanding as to where the north-western frontier of Afghanistan really runs.' This proposal was rejected by England, under the influence of those who feared that such a timely demarcation would give an indirect sanction to Russian extension up to the line of delimitation. Now that the Russian frontier marches with that of Afghanistan, that objection disappears, and the Russian Government, therefore, renewed the proposition of 1882—namely, that the north-western frontier of Afghanistan running from Khojah Saleh in a westerly direction should be definitively settled."

THROUGH the omission of the little word "not," a serious error occurs in a paragraph which appeared in yesterday's issue respecting the phylloxera vastatrix. It is true that evidences of the presence of the pest have been discovered in the vineyards of the Camden district, but the parasite itself has "not" yet been discovered.

VICTORIA.

MELBOURNE, MONDAY.

Recently Mr. Dalley wrote to Mr. Service, suggesting that New South Wales, South Australia, Queensland, Tasmania, New Zealand, and Victoria should each contribute £10,000 as a bonus for the discoverer of a specific that would rid the colonies of the pest, the offer to be published in Europe and America. Mr. Service, in reply, stated that the rabbit difficulty was being satisfactorily dealt with in Victoria. The Government offered to assist the other colonies whose system of local government was inferior to that of Victoria if a reasonable scheme were arranged, but to give £60,000 for a specific, he thought, was too much.

ADELAIDE, MONDAY.

The Commissioner of Public Works visited Morgan on Friday last, for the purpose of inspecting the improvements which are being made for the navigation of the Murray. At various points in the river training walls are being constructed for the purpose of increasing the depth of the water, and also with the view of inducing a current. Altogether there are 17 places in the river where obstructions exist, and it is intended that similar works shall be constructed at all these places. It was for this purpose that Parliament voted a sum of £10,000, of which £2300 has been expended already.

A deputation from the soft goods importers interviewed the Colonial Treasurer to-day, and pointed out the inconvenience of being compelled to produce the original invoices when passing entries at the Customs. They offered to allow a competent confidential officer to examine their books, in conjunction with the invoices, so as to see that the entries in the books were of the same value as those on the invoices. The Treasurer said that the regulation had been framed to place the honest merchant in a similar position to the dishonest merchant, who undervalued his goods from 4 to 10 per cent. He promised, however, to consider the offer, though he did not think it was feasible. He had no wish to hamper their business, but the Government were bound to ascertain whether they were receiving a fair duty.

At a meeting of commonage residents the secretary stated that 747 applications for leases had been made up to April 4, and the area applied for amounted to 347 acres, which would bring in a rental per annum of £467 19s. 6d. Two hundred forms had been returned. A large number of people had been pegging out land since the lists had been sent in, but they would find that they would not get leases. Mr. Croudace had refused to have anything to do with the presentation to Mr. Melville. The Minister for Lands had told the secretary to the Commonage Committee that the present residents of the commonage had as much right to the land as anybody. After all expenses had been paid £3 13s. 6d. remained in hand. Each resident had contributed 1s. 6d., for which he would obtain in effect a lease of the ground occupied.

A branch of the Australian Joint Stock Bank has been opened at Copmanhurst.

The Land and Industrial Alliance Committees of the coast branches met a short time ago, and resolved that the subscriptions of the members shall be 5s. for the remainder of the current year. The following questions were decided to be submitted to the president of the Alliance for his legal opinion and advice:—In a case when the Land Court recommends the forfeiture of a conditional purchase upon which the selector has made a declaration of residence and the improvements required by the Act, is the selector liable to a criminal prosecution for making a false declaration? Does an inquiry into such cases by the local land boards come within the scope of the criminal law? If so, does the onus of proof of the non-fulfilment of the conditions lie with the Crown, or whom? Is the selector in such cases obliged to answer such questions as may criminate himself? In view of the probable formation of branches of the association at Ulmarra, the Orara, and elsewhere, the secretary was requested to give all the information in his power regarding the objects of the Alliance to persons in those localities willing to move in the matter.

An inquest was held to-day on the body of Timothy Kinchela, who was found dead in his house on Saturday morning, and a verdict was recorded that death resulted from heart disease.

The Penrith Volunteer Corps were to-night dismissed as recruits. About 50 members were present, and were drilled by Captain Hill, adjutant. At 8 o'clock a heavy storm of rain came on, and the company were compelled to adjourn to the nearest shelter. Afterwards they completed their examination at the Temperance Hall, Captain Hill being well pleased with the progress they had made. Several more recruits were sworn in.

It is proposed to tender Mr. T. R. Smith, M.L.A., a complimentary banquet, and a meeting to finally arrange matters in connection with the affair is to be held on Thursday evening.

Fifty-three points of rain fell here in about half an hour this evening.

The Clarence Examiner of Tuesday says: "On Sunday death claimed a well-known old resident of Grafton in the person of old Ki Koon. Deceased came to the district with the late Mr. Richard Bligh over 30 years ago, and remained many years in the service of that gentleman's family. When Mr. Bligh left the district Ki Koon remained, and went into business. At one time he had an extensive grocery business in Prince-street, but he has been out of this for several years. He was from one of the far inland provinces of China beyond Pekin, and his case is illustrative of the great diversity of races in China, for very few of his nationality visiting this district could hold any converse with him except through the medium of the English tongue."

MINING INTELLIGENCE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

NEWCASTLE, MONDAY.

A rich seam of coal is reported to have been found on Mr. Quigley's estate, Lake Macquarie. The seam is said to be 18 feet thick, 10 feet of which is of superior quality.

TEMORA, MONDAY.

A mass meeting of miners was held on Saturday night at Crowley's Assembly-rooms, when it was decided to present a petition to the Department of Mines, requesting that the £500 voted for prospecting purposes at Temora should be expended under local supervision.

PARKES, MONDAY.

There is no fresh news from the Bachelors' rush, except that numbers of men have left, and are leaving there daily. Mr. W. Hazelhurst cleaned up on Saturday, after crushing 106 loads of stone, producing a magnificent cake of reported gold, weighing 522 ounces, or a yield of nearly five ounces to the ton. This claim adjoins that of Messrs. Quayle and party, from which the cake of gold which is now being exhibited at A. J. S. Bank, Sydney, was obtained. Messrs Quayle and party have again upwards of 150 tons of stone at grass.

The mining manager of the New Reform Gold-mining Company, Limited, Lucknow, under date May 14, reports:—"Since last reporting, on the 10th April, all the new machinery purchased has arrived; the foundations cut out; plans and specifications for the erection completed; tenders accepted; machinery unpacked, inspected, and found complete. Foundations are now going in, upon a solid rock bottom, of the heaviest timber obtainable. Contractor Byrnes, under a penalty of £5 per week, completes the whole in 10 weeks, weather permitting. The whole of the battery is undergoing a thorough overhaul, even to the foundations. The boiler has been cleaned and shipped, flues received the necessary attention, both ends newly bricked in, and bottom of stack pointed all round; new feed and exhaust tanks placed in position. The engine has been completely taken down, overhauled, reerected, brightened and fresh painted in the necessary parts. Contractor Robinson has completed a most satisfactory and creditable job in the erection of the new cylinder within the specified time. The engine is now complete, the boiler being filled, and battery drawing on to same condition of perfection. The whole will be again in full swing on Monday next, and good enough for another two or three years, that being the time this machinery has been running without any delay worth noting for repairs. In the mine, also, since last press report a little satisfactory work has been done, £3000 worth of bonanzas, £300 worth of free gold, £300 worth of concentrated ore, and 250 tons of crushing stone has been obtained, while the faces look almost good enough to warrant a reinforcement of the Lucknow dynamite contingent."

The adjourned general meeting of the Lubra Silver-mining Company, No Liability, was held at the Exchange, Sydney, on Friday. Mr. J. H. Legge presided. About 70,000 shares were represented personally and by proxy. The manager's report to date was read, to the effect that contractors had reached the lode worked in the underlay, and were now driving along the course of the lode southward, in which direction it was improving in size and quality. A report was also read from Mr. Norman Taylor, who had examined the plans and reports from the mine, and generally confirmed the views of the manager, that the company's mine only required the necessary work to be carried on with skill and energy to be developed into a great mining property equal to first expectations. He considered the Lubra mine equal to anything on the Silverton field. The proposed rules were read, and after being considered and amended, were passed. Messrs. F. T. Jones, C. P. Clayton, John James Collins, J. L. Tebbutt, J. H. Legge, all of Sydney, George Barr, of Melbourne, and John de Baun, of Silverton, were elected as directors; Messrs. F. J. Thomas and H. M. Millaners appointed auditors; and Mr. Charles F. Nicholls manager. The manager was instructed to register the extended company, when new scrip would be issued paid up to 10s. per share.

Mr. John Bezley, who has been prospecting for the last 10 months, reports the discovery in the Turon district of a deposit of stream tin, pronounced by the Government geologist to be very rich.

The manager of the Nymagee Copper Mining Company, Limited, reports the output for the week ended 16th instant to be 35 tons of refined copper, from 296 tons of ore smelted. Copper despatched 35 tons.

CRICKET.

JUNIOR CUP AND TROPHIES.

RYDE v. OSBORNE.—The latter club requiring 68 runs to score a win, began their task at half-past 1 last Saturday; and, notwithstanding the early hour that was appointed to start, several hundred persons were present, which number greatly increased during the progress of the game, and by half-past 3 there must have been fully 4500 spectators. Varley and Williams opened the innings for the Osbornes, Spurway and Docker doing the trundling for the Rydes, and in the first six overs no less than four men were sent to the right about, Docker being credited with three of them, the board showing 4-0-7. Noble and Wales got together and made the game a bit lively by running several short runs, the latter batsman, however, after making 9 was disposed of by Spurway. Eight wickets down for the small score of 32, and the general opinion was that the Osbornes would never get the required number of runs, notwithstanding that they have the name of playing a grand up-hill game. With 36 runs still wanted to win, M'Queen joined Noble. Both men set to work in real earnest, and succeeded in pulling the match out of the fire with two wickets to spare, amidst the wildest excitement. A word of praise is due to both Noble and M'Queen for the manner in which they batted at such a critical moment, for both Docker and Spurway were dead on the wicket, and, in fact, in no Cup match has such splendid bowling been seen as that of last Saturday. The fielding of the Rydes was a great improvement on the previous Saturday.

Appended are the full scores:—

FINAL MATCH.

SURRY UNITED v. OSBORNE.—The final match for the attractive cup and medals presented by Messrs. Peapes and Shaw, and also for the Consolation trophy presented by the president and vice-presidents of the Junior Cricket Association, was started after the completion of the above match with the Rydes, and, as before stated, the lovers of junior cricket rolled up en masse. The Osbornes won the toss, and sent Pearce and Varley to the wickets, against the bowling of Gosnell and Thompson. The former's first over disposed of Pearce, he playing it softly into the hands of point. Clayton and Wales were both sent back by Thompson without troubling the scorers. Brown, after getting 10, put his leg where his bat should have been, and paid the penalty. When 9 more runs had been added, Toby succumbed to one of Gosnell's breakbacks, the telegraph showing 5-2-35. Noble became Varley's partner, and between them they added 20 runs to the total. Varley, who had been playing well, but should have been caught out by cover point when about 12, ran himself out by about half a yard through slipping on the matting. Williams foolishly gave Searle a chance for a bit of smart stumping, through standing off his crease after he had played at a ball. Noble, after playing a very useful innings for 21, skied one up, which gave Gosnell an opportunity to make a most brilliant running catch off his own bowling. Mitchelson no sooner came in than he was grandly thrown out by M'Dowall. The play then ceased for the day, the score standing at nine wickets down for 67 runs. There is a special trophy for this match presented by Messrs. Holdsworth and M'Pherson, for the player who obtains the best batting average, in addition to the two £5 5s. trophies presented by Mr. A. Hilder, for the player who shall have the best batting and best bowling average all through the cup contests in which his club has played. As the evenings are drawing in, this match will be resumed at 2 o'clock sharp next Saturday.

The final match of the season between the Police C.C. and the Tobacconists' C.C. took place on the Hope Cup wickets, Moore Park, on the 11th instant. The Tobacconists won the toss, and went to the wickets first. They were strongly represented, amongst their team being the veterans Nat. Thompson and Charley Bannerman, also Waters, Dobson, and Phelps, who all succeeded in making double figures, and when the last wicket fell, the scoring board showed 86. The police followed, and, through the excellent batting of Power and Blackey, totted up 90 for the loss of one wicket only, thus winning the match with nine wickets to spare. The bowling of Gorman and Dunn for the police was very good indeed.

The Wentworth and Old Derwent C. C. played a two days' match on the Derwent ground on Saturdays, 9th and 16th, resulting in a draw in favour of the Wentworths. The Old Derwents went to the wickets first, and put together 158: Rudd, with 54, and Ashdown, 30, played well. Burcher and Sparke bowled well for the Wentworths. The batting of Sparke (52), Evans (21), Dickings (21), and Rowley (20, not out), played excellent cricket, Rowley making some splendid hits. The bowlers for the Old Derwents were Archibald, Rudd, and Gelding. The Wentworth, when time was called, had lost seven wickets for 182 runs.

BOWLING.

During the visit of the New South Wales bowling team to Melbourne last year they enjoyed the hospitality of the votaries of this ancient game at Ballarat. The outcome was that a feeling of reciprocity was engendered, and the Victorians promised they would pay a visit to Sydney. Pursuant to their promise, the bowling representatives of the Golden City came and saw—but they did not conquer, for the associated clubs of Sydney proved too much for them, winning by 16 points, after a very pleasant game, in which the victors and vanquished were almost equally happy. The Victorians had had a sea voyage, but, sensible of the unsteadiness of the previous couple of days at sea, they were early at work on the bowling green of the City Club, in Cook Park. The turf in Victoria is more lively, and consequently the visitors were desirous of practising in order to get the "run" of the green, and they accordingly kept at it until they were summoned to partake of an excellent lunch. The visitors were the guests of the City Bowling Club, and the repast was laid in a manner which reflected much credit upon the caterer, Mr. Callaghan.

Mr. A. Forsyth, President of the Club, occupied the chair, and Alderman J. Young, President of the Bowling Association, the vice-chair. After the usual loyal toasts the Vice-Chairman proposed "The Ballarat Bowling Association," and the toast was drunk with musical honours.

Lieutenant-Colonel Smith replied. He said: I think that as a member of one of the bowling clubs at Ballarat, a distinguished honour has been conferred on me in asking me to reply on behalf of the Ballarat District Bowlers' Association to this toast, I do so because I have had the privilege, on several occasions, of entertaining, not only the bowling teams of New South Wales, but some of your representatives in Parliament. Everyone who has visited Sydney knows that whenever visitors come here from Victoria they are always entertained with the most princely hospitality; and I have all the greater pleasure in coming here now because, by some process of circumstances that I cannot exactly explain, there appears to be a greater affinity between Ballarat and Sydney than there is between Ballarat and Melbourne, or rather between Sydney and Melbourne—(No, no, and laughter)—and notwithstanding the presence of my friend and namesake (Mr. Smith, late Mayor of Melbourne), who represents a portion of Melbourne in Parliament, I must say that not only is Melbourne to some extent jealous of Sydney, but of Ballarat as well. (Laughter.) It so happens that in a place called Ballarat we have manufactured for the Victorian railways 100 locomotives, and neither Melbourne nor any other place has been able to take the tenders from us. The affinity I allude to arises partly from another circumstance. Go to whatever part of Sydney you like, and you will find in some capacity or other Ballarat natives. You will find them in the walks of literature; and I may remark that the son of a well-known Ballarat journalist has passed one of the law examinations of the Sydney University. Whatever is the cause, it cannot be doubted that there is a very friendly feeling, so far as Ballarat is concerned, not only towards Sydney, but to the whole of New South Wales as our mother colony. If I may be pardoned for a moment, I will remark that when the electric wire conveyed to us the news of the offer made by New South Wales to assist the Imperial Government, in all my experience of Ballarat, dating back some thirty years, I never witnessed such strong feeling of admiration as was then exhibited for the plucky offer made by New South Wales. So strong was this feeling that I was requested, as their representative for a quarter of a century, to ask our own Premier and Minister for War if they intended to make an offer on behalf of Victoria. Had that offer been accepted, Ballarat would have furnished its share of the contingent, and perhaps more. The reply to that offer you have no doubt read; but I venture to say now, and I shall say it again when our Parliament opens, that the offer of New South Wales was a manly, straightforward, and definite one, and was accepted in the spirit in which it was offered, while the offer which we gave through our representatives was a very indefinite one, and, therefore, I say that when Mr. Dalley made that offer it was not only a happy inspiration, but, if I may so express it, a stroke of genius, because, by that one act alone he has upraised not only New South Wales, but the whole of the Australian group of colonies both in the eyes of the people of the colonies, of our kindred in other lands, and even, I venture to say, in the estimation of the whole civilised world. (Hear, hear.) I do not know for my part what the feelings of my Parliament may be, but when I look at the loans which were floated recently, one by Queensland and one by Victoria, I venture to say that to no small extent was the excellent prices obtained for them to be attributed to the prompt action of New South Wales. I may say further, that if the Parliaments of the surrounding colonies were to do right they would say to New South Wales: "You have set us a noble example, and we do not think it is fair to ask your people to bear all the cost, as we are all connected with it. Further, we have in the money market recently obtained a position we

A inquest was held to-day concerning the death of the man who was killed on the railway line last Saturday between South Creek and Park station. The evidence given in effect that the deceased was a married man and Brown, who came out from England about a year ago, had since resided with her father, a grazier and latterly employed on the duplicate line. After leaving work they used to walk along the line towards their home at Emu Creek together and slightly injured his back, when they assisted him, and they got along all right until they reached the first bridge over the South Creek. Mrs. Lee was then slightly in advance of her father, and he decided the second bridge the latter saw the light approaching behind. He called out to his daughter, who turned to answer, and after the train passed he said to me the second bridge, thinking that she had actually met it. When about midway on the bridge he heard a piece of timber on the line, and while doing it to be heard some groans under the bridge, whereupon he went down, and found his daughter, who had been struck by the passing engine, behind over the bridge to a depth of 30 feet. Brown was alive and able to speak, but she complained of pain in her thighs. Lawrie procured the assistance of some who lived in the neighbourhood, and having placed Brown on some sacks on a stretcher, they proceeded as best they could to the station, where Dr. Lee, who was the first medical man on the spot, had arrived before reaching there. Dr. Lee, who made the post-mortem examination, said that both thighs had been broken, and the face was severely bruised and cut on the head and body. He stated that death was caused by the wounds and broken bones through falling from the bridge. The driver of the goods train stated that he did not see anything on the line at the bridge. The guard of the goods train and the acting stationmaster at South Creek, in connection with the running of the trains, showing to be passenger train by which the deceased and her husband at South Creek was not timed to stop at the station. The jury recorded a verdict to the effect that the deceased was accidentally killed, and that no person is blame for the accident.

(TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.)

Sir,—I may not be uninteresting to the readers and friends of the city to know that in the old Presbyterian burying-ground in Devonshire-street, right in the line of new or Commissioner of our railway to the Circular Quay, lies the remains of Sydney's last aboriginal queen, who was in the old days as Queen Gooseberry. A small stone, erected by Mr. Edward Barton, formerly of Pitt and Market streets, marks the spot, and records the birth and death and age (72). I well remember the old lady and her funeral, and I think that some regard of the sort by the authorities should be made are the last step in the march of progress. Even a photograph might be taken, especially as our centenary year, so that future generations might have an idea of the resting-place of Sydney's latest native monarch.

I am, &c.,

Sydney, May 18. DAVID TAYLER.

The above truly magnificent and highly valuable TOWN PROPERTY, which will be submitted in TWO LOTS (and if not so disposed of will again be offered on the same day, either in THREE separate lots or the whole in ONE LOT), having a SUITABLE AREA of LAND with each lot, which fronts Bombala-street on the east, Murray-street on the north, and a lane 20 feet wide on the south.
Lot 1. THE RAILWAY HOTEL, corner of Bombala and Murray streets, is perhaps, or will be, when quite completed, one of the largest and most convenient hotels in a country town of New South Wales, having, as it at present stands, 11 parlours, 21 bedrooms (a number of these being suites of apartments suitable for families or persons wishing for privacy), large dining-room, splendid lodgeroom, ballroom; commodious and tastefully-finished bar, with two private bars off same; pantry, conservatory, kitchen, servants' rooms, laundry, storeroom, and other minor outbuildings. 20-stalled stable, 5 loose-boxes, cowshed, fowlhouses, &c.; horse-yards, fitted with mangers, and a 20,000-gallon underground tank, supplied by roof-rainwater, always providing an abundant supply. The area of land to go with this lot will be 2 ROODS 14 PERCHES, and the site is undoubtedly one of the best in town.
Lot 2. THE GREAT FURNISHING ARCADE, fronting Bombala-street, is a commodious two-storied building, with large room and office on ground floor; a similar room upstairs, with bedroom attached; and at the rear extensive workshops and upholsterer's room and shed. There is also on the land, which in area is 1 ROOD 1 PERCH, a never-failing well of water.
The Auctioneers can, with great pleasure and confidence, call the attention of speculators and others to this important sale of centrally-situated and very valuable property in the rapidly rising Cooma, which is famous throughout New South Wales for the amount of business of all kinds always going on; and being situated in the heart of a very large and flourishing district, to which railway works are making rapid strides, a great future must be in store for this already prosperous town. It is confidently stated upon good authority that the last section of the railway line from Micalago to Cooma will be called at once.
The climate of the beautiful district of Manaro, together with its many other resources and attractions, are daily being recognised and appreciated by visitors from all parts, which furthermore point to the future of Cooma.
For particulars of title refer to Messrs. PIGOTT and TRICKETT, Solicitors, Sydney; and for any further information to Messrs. STARKEY and TAYLOR, Phillip-street, Sydney; or to the Auctioneers, Cooma Stock Exchange, Cooma.
N.B.—If possible, photographs of the various buildings and plans of the town will be forwarded to the above addresses, and the FURNITURE and STOCK-IN-TRADE of the HOTEL may be taken at valuation at the option of the purchasers.
